Customer Reviews

The camaraderie really clicks in this MG Contemporary Fantasy installment - just in time for things to really go sideways.
BOOK DETAILS:The Bronze Key by Holly Black & Cassandra Clare, read by Paul Boehmer, published by Listening Library (2016) / Length: 8 hrs 30 min
SERIES INFO:This is book #3 of the "Magisterium" series. There are expected to be five in total, with #4 & #5 (currently titled The Silver Mask & The Enemy of Death) to be published in 2017 & 2018 respectively.
This review contains spoilers for the previous book(s).
SUMMARY:This series is just getting stronger; and, although I continue to wish for more development of the side characters, Call is a current favorite protagonist. This is a really fast read, with excellent pacing. And while I had correctly guessed who the spy was long ago, there was another secret revealed that completely surprised me. As was revealed in various summaries, there are some deaths in this book; and while I was sad, the ending really left me excited for the next one. CHARACTERS: Callum Hunt: He starts the book in a really good place. He has accepted himself and no longer feels the need to evaluate his every action for potential evil overlordness. That's not to say that everything is perfect in his life. He still feels insecure in his friendships, although they have moved beyond the conflict of the previous books. Even Jasper has ceased to be his nemesis and is officially labeled "frenemy." WORLDBUILDING: We only visit one new major setting in this book - the Collegium (where the students move on to after the Magisterium).
